Design 4 Good Challenge

For students who are tuned into solving the world's problems with BIG and small ideas, or who are fans of TV's "Shark Tank", GENYOUth's AdVenture Capital program is the perfect platform for challenging their bright minds. Over 75 students from 15 schools representing 12 states had the chance to flex their social entrepreneurship skills, thinking and creating in a virtual challenge to tackle a real-world problem facing their schools in the SAP "Design 4 Good Challenge."

After hours of brainstorming, and mentoring by SAP and GENYOUth staff members, students designed and pitched their ideas in a 90-second presentation to judges. With the scores calculated, Gilford High School students were named one of the winners of SAP's "Design 4 Good Challenge" and received a $1,000 grant for their project to support students' social and emotional health and wellness.

The student group consists of five freshman students who are looking to make a positive impact on the Gilford School District and community. Congratulations to Cole Bertholet, Jared Beale, Ava Lien, Nicholas Haddocks, and Brody Testa! And congrats to Mr. Andrew Thurston for working with these students.

The student pitch of the "SOAR program" would empower high school student athletes to mentor other high school or middle school students to get involved through team building activities such as volunteer projects, field day type events, and physical activities such as a walking group or intramural sports. Their hope is this program will hopefully get youth out of their "bubble", support their social and emotional health by being involved in a community program that has a positive impact on others, and also would help bridge the gap between middle school and high school involvement in activities that foster team building and collaboration skills.

After meeting and planning on June 2nd and 3rd, 14 student leaders from the high school partnered with PE classes for 5th and 6th grade. These GHS students used their money to purchase Bucketball sets, Giant Jenga, and Horseshoes.
